Topics Discussed:

Project Overview:

Firstly, our team members proposed some interesting topics that could be potentially used for our project. However, we agreed that the most suitable one was the idea to create a website for human resources management of a company. We thought it could give us many possibilities.

Generally, the team had gained knowledge about the topics that were discussed in the previous week such as: PHP, Javascript, MySql, CSS e.t.c. After a discussion about how we should develop the project from the programming point of view, the team members seemed to be quite familiar with the terminological terms used which clearly showed their pre-knowledge about the programming languages.

Decisions Made:

- Firstly, we decided to create a website for Human resources management for a company.
- We agreed that we will use for the frontend JavaScript, Html and Css

- We agreed that we will use PHP for the backend PHP.
- We decided to use SQL for the database.

Tasks Assigned:

All in all, the tasks assigned for the following week are more focused on the front-end:

1. One of the most important tasks for the team is to gain knowledge about Human Resources in general in order to make concrete decisions on how to start developing the project.
2. We will be responsible especially for the numbers of users that will be part of the project
3. We also proposed that we should better look for templates related to the topic of human resources.
